Fergusia and Heptarchus.

Efore I discourse of this Marriage, it will be necessary. I that I tell you the different state and Character of those Noble Persons now Contracted.

her Christien of the first Marriage, Orphans, ERGUSIA is a Lady of venerable Antiquity, of a competent Estate and Fortune, and a Sovereign over a bold and hardy People: She has cherish'd all her Sons for a long Tract of Time, to their Satisfaction and Content. She lives at a Distance from Neighbours on all Hands; only on her South-border dwells the Renoun'd Heptarchus, of whom afterwards. This Lady has lived in great Chastity with her Children at Home; Her Chastity, tho' feveral Times attack'd, yet was never violated; fave that once, a long Time ago, her barbarous Neighbour Edwardo, did commit a Rape upon her; at a Time when the was wallowing in Tears, for the Death of her only Daughter, and two of her nearest Cusins were debating who should succeed her.

It was at this Time the was ravish'd by that King, whom, because a Crown'd Head, I will not characterize as he deserves; who to accomplish his Rape on this Lady, had debauched the most part of her Off-spring. Bur afterwards they repented of their Folly, and rescued their Mother with whole World Rung with the Noise of it; and Edwardo, with his People, were so infatuated with their Vengeance, that they turned Quakers for a considerable Time after.

Fergusia being thus happily delivered, she appointed the moble Brussio, and his Posterity, to inherit their deceased Daughter's Patrimony, under whom, and their Successors, all her People lived a long Time happily, keeping her own, and Desending themselves from the Attempts of the Successors of Edwardo.

In Process of Time the Inheritance of Edwardo fell in to the Successors and Heirs of BRUSSIO, in the Person of Salamoni Pacifico, who united both their Scepters in one: But this Inheritance being greater, and the Soil much better and warmer then that of Fergusia, named Caledon, he left it, and went to recide in the Capital City of Edwardo. Since which time Fergufia has been as good, and worse than a Widow; and her Children of the first Marriage, Orphans, and Slaves to the Children of the second, viz. the Edwardines. Thus she feels her felf a poor forlorn Widow, and many ofher Children forc'd to leave her House & Country, to push their Fortunes abroad in the World; and those of them who are possessed of any Fortune at Home, spend it at the Court of Pacifico, and his Successors; To whom shall Fergusia complain? That the's Robbed both of Husband, Means and Children! She goes to the Altars of Jovah: But because that God hath frequently helped her, Pacifico, who had Experience of His Power, takes Care to have his Priests banished, who were Eerquia's best Friends, and by whom the used powerfully to Supplicat, and that with Speed and Success too; in whose Read he chose them Priests and Arch-Priests of the Religion. and in the Interest of the Edwardines, the better to oppress the poor Fergusians at home. These Men carried all before them in the Days of Pacifico, and were much more favoured by his Son Bigetzio, who in others call Martyrio; until the Yoke became intollerable, and those Arch-priests so mortally hated, that the Fergusians drove them from the very Altarse vindicating their Liberties in many Addresses to Bigotzio: And in the mean time called home their best Friends, viz. The Banished Priests, and thus all was happily established by Bigotzio's Order to the content of all. But some Edwardines and their Arch-Priests in those Days, made him to overturn all; which forced the Fergusians to defend themselves by Arms. in which they were joined by a great number of the discontented Edwardines, and their braverie was fo great, as to defeat the Arms of Bigotzio, and tumbled down his Altars, and mighty Priefthood, which was maintain'd by that Force: Thus they revenged Fergufia and her Priests upon the Priests of Edwardo. Then it was that all the Nation of the Edwardines embraced the Priethood and simple Worship of the Fergusians. In the mean time, a Faction arose; headed by the bold and valiant Rigicidius, who flew the unfortunate infatuared Bigotzio, and Banished his Ost-spring. This Man was a Gentleman by Birth, who first subdued the Edwardings and then came down into Caledon against Fergusia, and the young Courtizano the Son of Bigotzio, whom he deteated. And thus committed a Rape upon Fergusia and her Sister Juverna: But to make some amends for his folly of ravishing first his Mother, and then Fergusia and Juverna her Sisters; he treated them all handlomly and fuitably to her high Quality, and according to their own Genius, especially in facred matters. but all this building fell to the Ground on the Death of Rigieidius, like Rops of Sand: For all the Sisters called home the Banished Courtizano. He as much contemned poor Fergusia and more than his Predecessors, and violated all her Liberties Sacred and Civil, and that over the Belly of the Holy Covenant, and the great Obligations and Kindness of the Ferguhans. To him succeeded his Brother Romanus who was 12ther worse, being deeply Bigotted to the worst Religion then in the World, which the Edwardines and Fergustians equally hatted: Against whom they called in the famed Aurantio the next Heir to the Crown, by whom he was forced to Abdicare

and go to the King of Slaves for Relief. But all in vain, for he died in Exile. Aurantio prevailing, Fergusia entailed on him, and the excellent Maria, and their Successors her Crown: And failzreing of them on their Sifter Judith, and her Islue; who now possesseth all without Islue. In which Case, the Edwardines ( without Consulting the Fergusians ) have Entailed their Crown and Kingdom of Heptarchia, upon the Illustrious and Virtuous Salomonia, Grand-Child of Salamoni Pacifico, the next Princess of the Blood, that's qualified, according to the Statutes of Heptarchia. But the Fergusians find, on the Demile of Judith, their Entail expires, and they return to the same State they were in at the Abdication of Romanus: And tho they encline that the Noble Salomonia should succeed to their Crown, as the nearest Princess of the Blood, and most worthy: Yet, like Prudent Men, they Retuse the fame Successor, unless they be admitted to all the Privileges. and Immunities of Subjects that owe Alledgance to one and the same Prince; which the Edwardines have for a long time denied them. They find likewise, it's necessary to Rectifie the OEconomy, which has been dreadfully disordered fince Pacifico left them; through the Encroachments of the Edwardines: And that for this End, either Salomonia must dwell fometimes in their House, (which for want of a Tenent, an Hundred Years past, has become Ruinous) or else they must have Liberty to put in Tenents of their own Nomination, to keep the House Water Tight, and continual fire in it's Chimneys. For, fince the days of Pacifico, it's Tenents being all of the Interest of the Edwardines, (who used to give them their Tacks as they pleased) they have taken no Care of the House, being oft Abroad at the Court of the Edwardines; or else when at Home; Governing it wholly at their Pleasure. This Resolution causes the Edwardines to declare the Ferguhans, Aliens, against a prefixed time, if they did not go in to their Succession. In the mean time, the Renouned Judith, to prevent all this Storm, and keep her Dominions from being Dismemb red on her Demise, purposes a Marriage berwixt the the Lady Fergusia and Heptarchus, as the best Expedient to make them both happy; and accordingly she is impowered by the Senates of both these People, to Nominate Discreet Friends to both Parties, to Meer, and Transact the best Bargain they can, for Both. Before I come to this, it's necessary I tell you the Character and Condition of Heptarchus.

This Gentleman is Young, and Lusty, very opulent and Rich, and upon that account a great Contemner of his Neighbours. He was of old very much oppressed, and intirely subdued, first by the Casurians: Then upon their declention, by the Fergulians, against whom he called in to help him a Barbarous Pagan People out of Allemania, who of Servants and Confederats made themselves his Masters. He was afterwards oppressed by the then famed Nation of the Lochlans: And at last by a brayading Bastard, he was Hector'd to an intire Submission, in to far, that he kept nothing of himfelf but the old Name: So that this Gentleman has all the Blood of these annexed People in his Veins, and also all their conquering Vigour. Tho he was thus abused in his Minority, yet when grew up he proved a Stout Valiant Man, and did nothing but commit Rapes on his Neighbours; particularly on that Magnificent Lady who had fent him her Baftard, whom he made his Slave and Captive; you are to know also, that this Gentleman has one Sister called Juverna, whom he has kept as a conquered Slave for some Ages: Who often bids Fergufia look on her Fetters, when the treats on Marriage with Heptarchus; alledging she had once as good terms for her Honour and Liberty as Fergufia now expects, but complains Heptarches is fo strong, that Parchiment will not bind him. Again Heptarchen tho' his Religion, and that of Ferguha's be one, in it's great Foundations, yet there are such difference in it's Manadgment and Circumstances, that it appears a quite different thing. Heptarchm, has a great deal of Flamines & Arch Flamines, Decano's Arch Decano's, Parfono's, Rectorio's, Prebendario's or Canonicos, and these Men are possessed of great Estates, and are Members of his Senate, and many times have possessed possessed the chief places in his Common wealth. Fergusia has none of all these, nor can she find so much as their Names in all her Fathers Testament, and thinks they are of no use, but pernicious and a Burthen to the State. For her part her Priests are all on a Level, and she takes care not to corrupt them with too luxuriant Revenues, seing she finds these spoil them, to all the purposes that her Father ordained them in his Will: So that one or two of Heptarchus his Flamines is possessed of more Revenues, than all the Priests in Caledon have all ogether; which makes Fergusia cry, Wherefore all this waste? Again Heptarchus his Flamines Arch-Flamines, oc. Keep no Wall about their Church yeards, so that they are filled with Profane Dogs and Swine, which Fergusia thinks a great Pollution of her Sacred Viands. And therefore she labours to keep up a strong Wall, and has a Gate to shut up, and let out whom the pleases, always on Just Grounds. Again, Heptarchus Priests worthip God with a strange Pomp and Ceremony, Reading, Confused Humming and Norse, Becking and Binging, and a wanton kind of Fig-Spiner, which the Fergulians aiwie liken to that Yelping thing that's all Lungs, which their Red shanked Mountain Men are so Dextrous at; all this the Ferguhans look upon as Indian Teff, and at least to be the most Childish Worship imaginable." The Fergusians have no part of Worship, but what is grave; Natural, and most certainly Revealed. Besides, those Flamines have of late Deferted their own Articles, and Embraced fuch a Number of new Dogmata's, that their Religion grows like their Almanacks : Which Unstedialtness and Scepticism Fergusia Hates. Again, Fergulia finds all Loofeneis and Debauchty has been Nurled by the Flamines ; lo that the Controversie twist Her Levell'd Priests, and their Mytred Apostles, is, Whether Practical Religion than thrive or not ? Whether Civil Liberty, (of which the Flamines have been the perpetual Traditore) that be preferred, or nor? In End, I that conclude his Character, by telling you, He is open and Free, but Fergu-Finderios of Caberella and Referved Son Andrews and Finderic and Entres, and are Members of the Control of the

Inow proceed to speak of the Contract and Marriage, and whatever was in the Mouths of their Friends on either hands. you shall hear from these two noble Persons themselves. You must also know, it's inconsistent with the Modelty of Fergusia to be the Aggressor, tho few of her Sex do really encline to be Daughters of Jephtha.

Heptarchus being advised to this Match by Judith, the best of Queens, who was alike interested and related to him and Ferguha; one Day makes her a Visite, and after a great many Civilities and handsome Complements, as handsomly returned, he at length accosts Fergusia, in this loving Manner

I

Madam, It's long since I began to propose love to you first, it was, you may mind, in the Days of Pius the fixth, but you know your Friends then foorned me, & wedded you to my-sideft Enemy the King of Slaver: But Providence and my Arms, rescued you from the Arms of that Tyrant, together with your own Resolution and Bravery: Old Love, Madam. ( as we use to speak ) is soon kindled; and besides, since that Time, your Princes I have made mine, since which time I have been ravished with your Charms and Constancy. It's no sudden Passion or young Fond Love I pretend to, it's founded on long Happiness in your Acquaintance, and the Charms of your agreeable Conversation; since the Time that Pacifico got us to dwell in one House together. O happy Time has his Name was, so was he. Madam, You are the only Person in the World can make me happy : I'm passionate to possess that shining Beauty and Vertues I have so long beheld and Admired in you.

Fergufia, Sir, This is an Age of Complements, it is the ufual method of the Beaus to cajole innocent Ladies with pretended Passion, when in the mean Time they delign nothing but interest or diversion, and sometimes both, and when you have got your Defign, you leave us to the Laughter of the World. But to touch, Sir, your Complement, I acknowledge it was the Time of the renouned Prince Pins the fixth you made Love to me, and my nearest Friend and Blood Relation, the Duke of Chatlerault confented to it, and with great Solemnity swore upon the Bible, as the Commissioners from the Edwardines did the Articles agreed upon, but Henry the Eight refiled from all, as is offered to be instructed from authentick Evidences, whereupon my Fiends disposed otherwise of me. I bless the Providence that delivered me, and remember with Thankfulness the Favour you then fhewed me, in helping to refcue an Oppressed Lady, the' in the mean time, Sir, it was your own Interest as well as mine, yet I must thank you for it, I think it was the best, if not the only Kindness, I ever had at your Hands. True Sir, you delivered me from the Gauls, and put me in a Capacity to deliver my felf from the Romans. But if you are in earnest with your Passion ( to make short Work of our Intreague ) I'll tell you what may ease it. I was then a Minor, but now I am at my own Disposal, I'm content to marrie you just on the Contract and Terms you then offered me, a Copy of which I have yet by me: Which Contract Sir, so earnest was your Aftection, you published to the World with your Sword in Hand; Terms which you offered when you and I were perfect Aliens, if you are in earnest now when we have been fo long Confederates, I'm fure you'll blush to alter.

Hept. It's a long Time fince Madam, and I have been much busied in Assairs, it's like I have forgot them: But you say you have a Double of it, pray let me hear what they were.

Fe'g. It's Ordinary Sir, for People to forget what they defire not to mind; but look your own Charter Chift, and there you'll find it. Until you get leasure, I'll read the Copy I have of it, which runs thus in Mr. Holinshead's History of England, Vol. 3d. P. 998, which Contract Sir, you'll see preserves my Independency and Sovereignity as well as yours, and all is reduced to four Articles.

First, That the Nations shall be under one Head, in a perfect. Equality and Amity.

Secondly

Secondly, That there may be a mutual Intercourse of Merchandise, and all Laws prohibiting the same abolished.

Thirdly, That both Nations enjoy their own Laws, Customs and Parliaments.

Fourthly, That it may be lawful for the Subjects of either Nation to Trade in the other, or the Dominions thereto belonging, by Export or Import, By Sea or by Land, without paying any other Customs than the Natives. Upon these Terms Sir, if you are a Man of your Word, I'll be yours for ever, against all deadly, for better for Worse, till Death us Depart.

Hept. Madam, my Love is so passionate to make you and my self happy (whom I know now much better than I did then) that I cannot be contented with this Sham; For this is not a compleat Marriage, it holds us still at a Distance, No, I can never be happy till you and I become one Flesh.

Ferg. Incorporated! I'm Jealous Heptarchius all is but Diversion or Interest, as I insinuated before; I mind Old Pacifico amused the World with such a Thing on his Coins Faciam eos in Gentem unam, and that's all I ever heard of it before. But pay Sir, explain your self, what do you mean by Incorporated? it looks pleaguedly like your Love to your Pockpudden, that you'd devour Me and burie Me in the midst of Your self, and I be turned into your very Flesh and Blood, at least it looks like Janah's Punishment, swallowed up in the Bellie of the Whale. This is the Notion I have of Incorporating, and if this be it, I had better live unmarried still: And indeed, Heptarchius, I'm jealous there is a Snake in the Grass; for your People have oft bragged, I would not be a Breakfast to them.

Hept. My dear Fergusia don't speak so, Jealousie is the worst Foe to Love; I intended the clossest & dearest Love even such an

Union

Union, as is betwixt Man and Wife, and that we should be no more twain, but one Flesh; and you misinterpret it in the worst Sense; No, Madam, I mean we should be so much one, as. Persons in a conjugal State, and so, ubi ego Cains, ibi in Caia. Mind my Motto, Honi soit qui mal y pense.

Fergusia, It's no Wonder I be Jealous of your Intentions, considering the Treatment I have had from you, since the Days of Pacifico, and yet now and then ye pretended Conjugal Love, when there was nothing but Diversion or Interest in the Case: Heptarchus, it's the Way to a firm Agreement, to tell you the Instances of this.

BoinU

157, You pretended Love to me in the Days of Pacifice, and when I had confented to the Terms of Contract, you basely Resiled, and left me, my Friends, and Senate, to the Laughter of the World; by which you discovered, all was but Diversion and Politicks, that's to fay, downright Knavery: Not only fo, but your Torie Faction, at least joined with old Pacifico, to rob me and my Children of all their Properties and Liberties bath Sacred and Civil; So that I was forced against my Will, and great many Remonstrances of my best Friends to embrace Altars, according to these Pacifico had seen at Damascus, by five damned Articles he paun'd on me, and at one Breath had Soveraignity, and an accurfed Turkish Prerogative imposed on me, above Law and Conscience too. And I wonder the more at it, that the Men who were the chief Instruments of all this, would allow no such Prerogative & Soveraignity to God Almighty over Mankind, which yet they exalted Pacifico to over me. I must tell you, Heptarchus, I think it monstrous for Men to deny absolute Sovenaignity to the great Creator of Heaven and Earth, and yet give it Frankly to fuch Vaffals of His, as Pacifico, Bigotzio and Courtezano were; If this be not a Contradiction to their Principles. I know nothing can be so? Wonder indeed that Pacifico and Bigotzio should be exalted to this Prerogative! But it's less wonder that Courtexano should have all this Supremacy over all Persons, in all Causes Ecclesiastical & Civil, as his Inherent Right Right (for I keep their own Words, 2 Par. Ch. 2d, E. Lauderdale Commissioner) for Courtizano's Religion was then the Religion of the World; and therefore no Wonder they adored this God. I date say, Pacifico, or any of his Successors, durst assoon have cropt their own Ears, as have Broacht this, before You and I dwelt in one House: But Heaven revenged all this Tiranny in the Days of Bigotzio; tho' Heptarchus, I am forry to mention it.

ado, In the Days of Bigotzio You and I United in the firstell and most Religious Bond, called to this Day the Solemn League. What you defined in making of it I shall not fay, but fure I am, you made no Conscience to keep it. I scarch ever heard, you lamented the Breach of it; tho you have many Fast and Feast Days: But I have still esteemed its breach as the Ifraelites: did the worishipping of the Golden Calf fince the Captivity, that whatever Punishments came on them, they judged some Ounces of this great. Sin was in it. If it was no Sin thus to be United, and I think it was none, then I am fure the Breach of it, ly at whose Door it will, is a Sin, God will and doth contend both with you and me for. Would to God Heptarchus you were in a penitent and reforming Frame, to Unite with this Covenant Foundation, which was the nearest Union we ever had together. Tell me Heptarchus, have you not lost your Religion, yea and Morality too, for which you were so famed in those Days? So that all Vice and Wickedness abounds with you, fince you deferted this Contract, and is this not an Evidence God has deferted you? Whatever You or I think, God has and will avenge this broken Covenant. Zeal for the God, and Worship of the Ferguhans, Heptarchus, has made Courtizano, because you seared our Militia Act; but when that was over, you as basely deserted your Courtship.

me a little more warm on this Head; I wish it might enflame you with Penitent Refentments.

4to, In the same Reign, You denied me the Priviledge of 2. Leige

Leige Man to my Sovereign by your Navigation Act, which yet lyes heavy on my Back, is this Courtship? Pray Heptarchus if You are in earnest in what you propose, repeal this Act; or else You both Court and would Marry one, whom you endeavour to make both Alien and Slave: What Credit can You have to Marry one whom you have so abused? Men of Honour reckon it below them, and when Princes Marry such, they use before Hand to Manumit them, and give them Titles and Priviledges answering their Design.

5to, You mind what You did lately to Me in Aurantio's Time in the Matter of the American Isthmus in all its particulars? It lies written on my Heart, as Calais did once at your Philippi Mario's. I don't blame that worthin Prince. he was Your Prisoner, and durst not speak one good Word for Batavia, more than for me: No I revere his Ashes, as the Father of my Liberty; but when I absolve him, I know whom I have to blame: And now Heptarchus, when I have mentioned all this, have I not Ground to Jealous your Intentions, that it's only Interest makes You Court; and when I have confented to entail my Crown on the excellent Salomonia, as You have done Yours, without once asking my Advice: You'l then leave me to my felf, and let the World again redicule me for my simplicity? But I'm not minded thus, to be babled Four or Five Times in one Age. You bade me mind Your Motto, I bid You mind my Proverb. That I'll not alwife be wife behind the Hand. I don't speak this, as if I had a mind to raise Sedition and Strife? No. do me Justice; and I'm for Peace and a perpetual lasting Friendship.

Hep. Let bygones be bygones Madam, You know what Violence I suffered from these Princes as well as You; You shall have Justice done You in the Matter of the Isthmus, I have ordered 400000 lib. to pay You for Your Stock and Interest: And the Navigation Act falls to the Ground upon our conjugal Union, this is that which shall make us both happy, and Enable us against Arbitrated Signs of Succeeding Princes.

Fergusia, Well said, Heptarchus, first burn me, and then blow me. Its just the price You payed Me for my Service in the Days of Bigotzio; but I mind I got only the Half of it, for mind You'r owing Me 200000 Lib. fince that Time; and if You pay Me Interest for it, as you pretend to do in this last Case, it will be vastly more. I mind you upbraided Me then for selling my King for a Groat ( tho' my Lord Hollis has justified Me) and now if I consent to this, and give up the Isthmus, and all My Soveraignty, by Incorporating, You, and all the World shall Justly say, I fold my King for a Groat, i. e. 400000 Lib. of which only 200000 were payed, & now I have fold my Country for the same Price! Pray Sir, pay off the Old Debt, before I trust You more New. This is a Swatch of Your Faith, and how much You are a Man of Your Word. But You feem to speak of this Payment, and this Conjugal State, as a Thing done, and that you have ordered: Pray Sir, what's the Matter? Sure Sir, You won't Wed Me against my Will.

Hept. I thought, Madam, You had known your Friends and mine, whom the Virtious Judith deputed to concert Terms of our Marriage, had agreed, that you and I should henceforth be one, and entirely incorporated; only you are to be governed by your own Laws; and I'm to pay you the aforesaid Sum for your Losses. It wants nothing but your Senate's Ratification and mine, to make it a Bargain.

Fergusia, Say you so Sir? I know they were about this Matter; and is this the Issue of it? O! that Old Brussio were alive, I'm afraid he would Cumine all. But because some of them whom I know very well, Fear God and Love Me, I will suffer no prejudice to be done them: And for Others of them whom I know not, I have Charity for them, that their Meaning might be good; But sure I am they have all followed wrong Measures. God open their Eyes now when all things may be tetrieved: And if I can make a good Bargain for Caledon I will easily be induced to go into the strictest alliance with the Illustrious and Virtuous Salomonia; and that with the Consent of all my best Friends, either in a Civil, Ecclesiastick; or Military Capacity. Have You and I, Heptarchus, been fighting these 300 Years for Matter of Moon-shine? And aster all, give up that Independency and Sovereignity, which, has cost the Blood of so many brave Men to defend it; it makes Me guilty of all the Blood that has been fied on both, Sides. It's like these Gentiemen are my Friends; but I fear? they have mistaken my Interest: I'm forry they have been fo forgetful of my Honour. But Heptarchia, Incorporated, am I to have no more Senates in Caledon?

Hept. No Madam, Your Senate and mine are to be incorporated into one: I'm to continue all my Members as betore: You are allowed a Bountiful Representation, much more than could have faln to Your share, by Your Proportion of Tax, Forty five Commons, and Sixteen Peers, and They are continually to meet in my Metropolis. This is the Transaction Madam.

Ferg. Bountiful Cornucopia, may be inscribed on it to all Posterity. I thank you for this Bounty; sure my Friends have had hard tugging before they extorted this Bounty fear if this take effect, the People's Curfe has lighted on the Head of the Peers for their Oppression since Pacifice's Days. Strange Alteration! They are now in Caledon the whole Senate; for they choose both in Country and Burgh as they pleafe. And none but Sixteen, it will be great Self-denial shall make them swallow this Pil. Well, since these are the Terms, Thope I may speak for my Self, and tell my Children my Mind of this Match, that they may do Me Justice when they meet in my House before it be left desolate, seing this is the last time I'm to speak, if this Marriage take Effect. I proclam my self against it on these Articles, and that for the following Realons.

ift. Ferg. I am Old and Gray-headed, you are young and Lufty, and that's an unequal Match; and to speak Broad Stors, it's a Marriage God neither Sends nor comes to: There can be no iffue of that Marriage; and it will make you continn Me: And in End, when I am fo used, I'le plead for a Divorce and take the first Opportunity of it.

2do, I'm Poor, you are Rich, and ye know what ye can expect with Me, Sir Ed. Symour I'm informed told you, and Mr. Fuller long ago preached it how the Lean Kine would eat up the Fat: Nay, I'm for an Equal Match as well as You, for it's the only way to be happy.

Hept. This is Your Advantage Fergufia, all I have thalf become Yours, all this is calculated to make You Rich and happy.

Ferg. No Heptarchus, it makes you proud in your Terms, that I am confideted in no other Respect, but my Wealth in the Number of my Members in your Senate. Besides, as I shall show afterwards, it will render me poorer then I am now. I'm astraid you design but what the Schechemites whispered on their Union with the Sons of Jacob, tho' they had but little, Gen. 34.

21, 22, 23. Shall not their Cattle, their Substance, and every Beast of theirs be ours? It's plain by this Union all I have becomes yours, and is persectly at your Disposal, and nothing you have becomes Mine, so as to be at my Disposal, because there is no Ballance of Power in my Hand, as it will be in yours, as afterwards yours, as afterwards.

But 3tie, I am weak and you are strong; and I think it can never be the Interest of a Weaker and smaller People to incorporat with a greater; for then they lose themselves, and are Sunk in the greater: Even as a small Rivulet is, when it's incorporat with a large River. And besides, they are still in the Mercy, and at the Discretion of the Former. It makes you as Arbitrary over Me, as Lewis is over his Asses, on the other Side of the Water. It it be a Politick to guard against the Absoluteness of a Prince, it must be equally so to guard against it in Parliament; for these have been Tirants as well as the Former, as both you and I know: And if you have a mind to oppose you: I'm a Rebel for the least Sawcie Word.

Hept. All my Strength is for Your Behoof: When we are united we have no divided Interest, my Power shall defend You from all Enemies without and within; it shall be to preserve Your Liberties, Sacred and Civil.

Ferg. I have had Power enough to detend my Self against all Enemies these 2000 Years past; I have still made good my Device, Nemo me impune lacesset: And I think that is still laser, than to entrust My ALL to Others: I mind the Old Proverb, and I'm atraid, lest I give the Wolf the Wedder to keep. It looks as if I were turn'd a Child again for Old Folks are twice Bairns) that I should stand in need of Tutors and Guardians. Beside, for all this Incorporation, you and I still have Divided Interests; I mean, sitst Religious, my Priests are levelled, and shaven crown'd: Yours all Mitred; My Worship Natural and Simple: Yours full of Pomp, Child-ishness and Ceremonie. My Dogmata Exalts God to an Absolute Sovereignity over Mortals: Yours limit Him (as ye have done your Successors) to a narrow Understanding, Conditional Will and Knowledge.

Your Arch-Flamines and Flamines, by this Marriage, become my Judges and Peers, and all your Senate are by Oath oblidged to maintain their Hierarchie, Doctrine and Worship: To put all my Interest in their Hands, is not this to give the Wolf the Wedder to keep; when it's their Interest and Conscience too, to devour my Church Constitution. Heptarchin, these Black Gowns have been a Black Sight to Me: I am like a Bird salin out of the Paws of the Hauk, I tremble at the Sight of them, and the sound of their Bells. Lords Spiritual! Lords Spiteful, rather have I sound them. I fear these must be removed from the Bench, and their Partizans, or else I am very unlafe : I cannot truft them.

It may be your Interest to prohibit the Export of Goods, which it's my Interest to Export. For Instance, it's plainly your Interest, and perpetual Practice, to Export no Wool or Skins; and I by incorporating, come under the same Law: When yet it's my Interest, in the present State of things, to Export both; seing I am not in a Capacity to Manusacture them to Advantage; as Lamentable Experience hath of late sufficiently demonstrated: And much more, when I'm incorporated, it will be my Interest to Export these Commodities; seing your Manufactories will deftroy mine, much more then they have done thefe Years past. I mind the Time when scarce any Body of Fashion, but were well cloathed Cap-a-pee with your Manue facture; and when all the Exactions and Restrictions shall be taken off, it will be much more fo: Thus rendering your Manufacture vaftly cheaper, to the Destruction of mine. Again it may be your Interest to import what it's my Interest to prohibit the Importation of: For Instance, it's your Interest to allow the Importation of Foreign Linnen-Manufacture, which it's my Interest by all Means to prohibite. Lamentable Experience has taught Me, how much my Linnen-Trade has decay'd, fince Muslins, Caligoes, and other Indian and Europian Linnens have been imported. Again, it may be your Interest to Proclaim War, when it's my Interest at least to be Neutral; as is plain in the late and prefent Wars. Again it's your Intereft, it seems, and Practique, that no Foreign Money should be ordinarly Current; whereas my Practice has been alwife! contrary, and so far as I know, it's my Interest too.

Heps. These Arch-Flamines and Flamines are Men of Moderate Principles, they cannot hurt You: And besides, You are to be secured in Your Spin wals from any Encroachments.

Ferg. I'm told so, but I had rather see it than hear it, it's not done yet, and suppose it should be so, for as Moderate as they are, it's a Maxim in my Politicks, never to trust Men, whose Zeal, Interest, and Conscience contradicts mine.

al Man, when his Contentions are matters of Riches & Ambition; these Contraversies shall never be reconciled, and above all, there have been Knavish Senates in Heprarchia as well as in Caledon.

4to, I'm oblidged to be circumcifed by this Marriage, and you are uncircumcifed still: You know what Laws were against such Marriages, I must not Marrie vill you be circumcifed too, mind the Words of Jacob's Sons to the Shechemites, Gen. 34. 14. That were a reproach to us, but in this we will consent consent to you, if ye will be as we be, that every Male of you be Gircumcifed, thus we will be one People, if not, we will be gone.

Hept. Circumcised! Pray what do you mean Fergusia? Are we all Heathens and Insidels, because, we are not Presbyterians, I fear we run the State of the Schechemites if we consent to this. Pray, say, Madam is it this You mean?

Ferg. You mistake it Sir, that's not my meaning, I mean by this Marriage my Senate are circumcised to Sixty One, and yours is uncircumcised still; why then Circumcise yours to the same number, or else let mine be uncircumcised still. What you mention'd as your sears, I have much more Reason to sear, that you come on me as the Jacobites did on the Schechemites, when I'm sore, and stridling with this Circumcision, this Wound to my Constitution, take my City, say my Children, break Your Paith, & carrie away my Cattel! What makes me more jealous is, that Levi was one of the two that did all this Mischief to the poor Schechemites, I know not but he may do so still, I doubt not but he was as frank for the therly Situation, consequently my Soil Barren and Rockie: yours is more warm and Southerly, your Soil more fertile and pleasant, your warmth will rob me of mine if I Incorporate, and will be as helpless to me as Abishag's to David. Your Soil will Depopulate mine in this Case, much more than it has done these Hundred Years past: Because the very shaddow. I have of a Court is removed to your Metropolis, and by that means I'm removed some Hundreds of Miles sutther from the Sun than I was before; my Nobilitie will remove to Court, where there Assairs are, my Richest Gentry and every Body that has a Place at Court, or expects any in Government or Army, and consequently my Rich Merchants and ingenious Artisteers will also remove where the Center of Trade and Riches is, thus I shall be miserably Depopulated.

Hept. You are mistaken Fergusia, a great many will rather Ferg. I beg pardon Sir, I speak nothing but what Experience teaches Me, in all parts of the World, and much more in my Circumstances, where my Soil is barron, viz. That the Remotest parts from the Court and Seat of the Government, are always and must always be Depopulated. I see this verified, to my own Experience, these Hundred Years past, I see it so in Juverna, that their Nobility and Gentry reside for the most part in Heptarchia. I find it so at Home, the Southern part Depopulates the Northern: It's true to a Proberb, That they come all over Tay in a misty Morning, and ban the Kuites that take them back again. By this Incorporation, Tweed will become Tay. You tell me a great many will come from Heptarchia and Battavia, and reside here; For which End pray? For Manufactures and Fishing reside here? I think not long; For where there can be no Consumption or Exactions on Trade, Trade must die. But so it must be in a Country entirely drained of the most part of its real Rent. Besides, for Manusactories, you can do them better and cheaper in your Nothern Countries, and that I reckon will fink mine.

As for Fishing, you have shewed no Fondness to it for an Age past, so mightily have you been set on Mines in the Indies, that you have suffered the Battavians to your Shame and Loss, to sish Mountains of Gold out of your own Coasts and mine. Fishing is indeed on of the rich Gitts of Providence to me, which I have not improved; but I reckon it still in my Power, if I will, to improve it at such a Rate; that if I'mnot insatuated, I may one Day prove Hogan Mogan, and put my self in a Capacity to dispute the Soveraignity of the Seas with you, mind it's but one Age since the Hogans were as far your inseriors as I am now; and that they owe all they have to the Oppression of a Monarch and Court who lived at a distance. What an other Age may produce you know not.

This

This Trade, my People, if they will, can drive to more Advantage without you, than with you; but if you join with me in this Trade, I know where the Sap of it must go, even where my Money goes; and all the Advantage I shall reap by it, will be only what now Kintire and the Illes get, by my present inconsiderable Fishing, i. e. I'll be a Harbour for Herring and Cod-fishers, to come in and Mend their Nets, in a Word, what Norway is in Respect to Denmark, since it's Union, I'll be with Respect to Heptarchia. Sweden and Denmark never sourished when United; but now separated, are become both formidable States. I'll be just what Portugal was once, when united to Spain: But if I remain separate, I have a Handle one Day, at least to be what now Portugal is to Spain.

may be evident by this Additional Confideration, That my Crown Rents, and my Cesses, Excises, all my Taxes are of necessity carried up to Court, which will impoverish me some Four or five hundred Thousand Pounds Yearly; and I doubt if all the Tobacco and Sugar Trade enrich me so much, I am fure it will not.

7thly, The Indies will drain me yearly of Men, which is the best Stock a Country can have, if they are wisely manag'd I had better keep them at home, and learn them to fish and Manusacture, than send them there to plant Tobacco and Sugar.

8thly, Compt the Expence of my Sixty one Members in your Senate; if I allow them but 400 lib. each (and the Nobility must be allowed more) it amounts to 24000 lib. Yearly; Dear bought Votes! which after all signific nothing more to my Security than five or three. And indeed if I must incorporat, I had rather plead for three than Sixty one; that so when the Rolls are called, Peers of N. B. it may be answered I am here; Barons, I am here; Burghers, I am here. It is enough to tell Stories when they come home, and Sixty one can no more cast the Ballance for Caledon, than three.

9thly, I am a Sovereign independent Lady, and I have the

Honour to be fo, for one third of the Worlds Age; By this incorporation I basely surrender it, and come into one State of Politick Slavery, giving up that Liberty which I have to manage my own Affairs, and order them as I think best, into your hands, to manage and order me as you think fit, as a meer County, and the Remotest too of your State: When in the mean Time you retain your own Soveraignity without the least Alteration; and moreover you have Accession to mine: My Ancestors would not have tamely parted with this, they spent their best Blood to maintain it. If my Peers, Barons, Tc. be so self-denyed, as to part with it, and their own Peerage and full Representation, then let Posterity call them no more Peers of Caledon, but Esans, who sold their Countrie and Birth-right to their younger Brother, for some hand-fulls of soure Tobacco & Sugar to sweeten it. Some of them have a long Time I hear faid, What Good does this Birth-right to me, seing I am a dying? it's Esau's Talk, I wish they make not

Liberty is the best of all Things, I'd rather have a Highland Plaid with Liberty, than the greatest Dainties, with a Hook in the Heart of it. No Beggar but he would rather beg from Door to Door with Liberty, than be any Man's Slave; tho' he would fead him luftily. It's to bid me cut off my Head and become your Tail; For this is the Incorporation, I give you my Head, and you suffer me to become your Tail, Honour, Independency, Freedom, Sovereignitie, can be fold at no Price, and Slavery is too dear at any Rate. Besides, Sir, No Body can give or relign to you this Sovereignity, Oc. My Senate cannot; for they have a Power only Superstruere; not Evertere ( as my learned Lawyers have sufficiently evinced ) the you should get the Consent Senatus Populusq; can this bind Posterity? Themselves it may: But no Agreement, no Oath of this kind, can bind Posterity; for it's a giving away what's not in their Power to give. My Father for Instance, can make himself a Slave, but not me. So Sir, you're like to have an Eel by the Tail. I'd rather my Sovereignity, Kingdom and State, should die out, like a Sinking Candle in his Socket, than thus basely put it out. It's plain, Self-Murther! This Surrender, this Incorporation, by coming under the Power of a Government, wherein I can make no Balance, makes me as much subjected, and dependent on the absolute Will of your People, in all my Concerns, civil and sacred, as if I were your conquered Slave. This is to me as plain, as that Seven hundred Voices always over-run Sixty one. This leads me to a 10th, If you and I incorporat, there is no possible Security of performing the Articles agreed on. For 157, There's a Gentleman in your Country called Major Vis, who can make all Articles void when he pleases. Tweena tells me out of her Fetters, To be ware of him. He is to strong, Parchment will not bind him. 2dly Compact supposes still different Parties: and where there are no different Parties, there can be no Compact: So that Paction ceases when you and I become one, and of Necessity all Articles must be altered, according to the Circumstances of the whole united Body': And no Man can make a Compact with himself. It I should afterwards tell you, my Contract is so and so, you may tell me again, that's nothing, a part and particular Member of the Body, must not be so much considered as the Good of the whole. If a Mans Feet, for Instance, should bargain, I'le Unite with you but I must never be food, and after sould plead it as his Priviledge: The Body would tell him, Good Mr. Foot, This Paction was made when you and I were separate, but now we are one: Besides it was Summer Time, but now it's cold Winter Weather; it's for the good of the whole Body you wear Shoes, therefore put them on Sir, or else I have two Hands will force you to it.

3 dly, The Government into which I incorporate, is a free Government, and uncapable of Limitation; and alwife at Liberty to do or undo; as they fee for the publick Good: For no Parliament can limit a succeeding One, but they can Rescind and Alter what they did. It will be needless for me to complain of Lesion; if I but mutter, it's Rebellion. Nay, they'll tell Me, Fergusa, You are become Subject to Heptarchia, the True Interest of Heptarchia is Yours, and You can have none

Hept. There is no Fear of all this; for I will, when united, Consult Your Interest, as mine own: Pleshew equal Favour and Justice to all my Subjects: If once incorporated, I care not tho you outdo Heptarchia in Trade, Power and Riches.

Ferg. Well faid, Heptarchus! When Juverna, your Planters and Diffenters, Tay Amen to this, I'le believe it; and if your Word be enough on't, what need of Treaty or Articles? I may as well submit all to your Discretion. But the Matter is, you know, if I incorporate, it's impossible I ever can have Trade, Power or Riches. For, 1/1: My Crown Rents, Celles OG. Are carried off. 2dly, I have no Merropolis bire what is vaftly diftant; My Court, Officers of State, King's Houshold Publick Meetings of the Government, Parliaments Councils Courts of Julice, are suppressed, or carried off to your Metropolis: It's these Things make Exactions on Trade. 3dly, My Chief Nobility, Gentry, and every one than has, on expects a Place, they go up; this takes away the best part of my Land or real Rent, 4thly This will draw off my Richeft Merchants and Artificers to the Place of Buffnels; as it does now from the North of Heptarchia. Sthly, My Sixty one Senatemen, they carry off Yearly some 24 or 30000 Lib, libthly. Your Manufactures will defittoy Mine: And when all this is weighed there can be no Confumption, no Exaction on Trade: and so no Trade, no Power, no Riches, nothing but an inconsiderable Retail in a poor Barren Country, the most remote These Considerations, and many moe, which from Court. you may read from the Pens of my Faithful Advocats, Ridpath and Hodges, make Me against this Marriage. But if you please to Unite on Pius the oth's Plea; or that made in the Days of Pacifico, and confented to by Me, it's a Bargain.

I am Confident, for these Reasons, My Senate, when they meet, will Reject this Marriage. In the mean Time, you may consider these Plans I have proposed, and with them, read at your Leasure hours the Treaty of Rippon: You may think oh all that till next Meeting.

No sooner had Fergusia ended, but Heptarchus, scarce minding the Civility of a Gentleman, flung out of Doors; and as he crossed the Threshold, threatned Fergusia, if she did not confent, he would put his Acts in Execution, and declare her Alien: But in the mean Time, added he, The plew with Your Hiefer! Fergusia thought it no Time to Answer a Gentleman, that had fo far forgot himself: Only she minded him to asswage his Choler, that she had not yet forgot, and he might mind, what hapned on the Death of the Maid of Norway: And tho' for a while he carried all before him; yet what was the Isfue of it? And that for her Part, the should be forry, if upon the Death of the Excellent Judith, whom Goo long preserve, (who is as much a Danish or Norwegian Maid as the former) there should be such Bloody Tragedies, and upon the same Theatre; Requesting him to mind also, that all this hapned, just when they were Triumphing over the Gallick Nation! Bidding him mind, leing thefe Circumstances were the same; he would also mind the End of the Story.

But, after all I would have no Body think, that I am avgainft a happy Union; only because I know not when I may have occasion to speak again to my Friends in my own House. I will freely tell you the Terms whereupon it shall be a Bargain betwink Heptarchus and Me, which I shall reduce to the

that I shall not be oblidged nor none of my Successors to take the Coronation Oath, which the Edwardines have adapted to the Constitution of Flamines and Arch-Flamines, and will ne-able Obligation to Goo Almighty by the National Covenant of Caledon, that no Flamines of Arch-Flamines shall have Place or Power to Vote in any of my Parliaments, and this must certainly be agreed to, otherwise I will reject the Proposal.

3dly, There

3 dly, There must be no legal restraint upon any of my Subjects by Sacramental Test, or otherwise rendering them uncapable of any Publick Trust or Office, Civil, or Military, by Sea or Land, whereby all my Children who are of my own Religion, may have equal access to be sharers of my Bountie, and have marks of Honour and Trust put upon them.

athly, If this Proposal take effect, I look upon my self bound in Conscience and Duty to provide, that all Priests who are of the same pertwasion with mine in Caledon, shall have a legal Title to all the Teithes in all the Dominions that belong to Heptarchus, where they are legally called, according to the good Old Principles of the Church of Caledon. And tho' I cannot say I will obtain all my desire, yet upon this occasion; I will with a very particular Zeal, speak for my Sister Juverna, that she may have the same Freedom of Trade that Caledon promises her self with Heptarchia.

And in a Word, If You intend to conclude this match with me, I must have the most unalterable and Friendly Security that can be devised, for the Confirmation and Establishment of the Doctrine, Worship, Discipline and Government of the Church of Caledon, as it is now Established by Law, according to the Confession of Faith, Ratissed in Parliament, Claim of Right, & many Repeated Acts of Parliament; the Execution whereof must be well seen to, and put in the Hands of Fix'd and Faithful Friends in Caledon, that so my best Subjects may not be put to Travail some Hundreds of Miles to get Grievances Redressed, but may have Protection and Patrocine at Home, and a more Essectual Execution of many Good Laws than ever my People yet had.

And now before I conclude, I must Apologize a little, that I have spoke with so much Acrimony against those who sollow Heptarchus's Flamines and Arch-Flamines, lest I be mistaken by my own Friends, as if I mean'd they were void of all Religion who differ with Me in Circumstantial Points: Far be it from Me to have such a Thought!
